

Former USA and World middle-weight Kickboxing Champion, Rodney “Batman” Batiste, an 8th degree black belt, a “Master” martial artist, a Professional Speaker, and a community activist who has been written up in the Washington Post Style section, Self and Ebony magazines, and various other notable publications - has written a book!

One of the nation’s leading publishing houses, Tate Publishing & Enterprises, is releasing this tremendous work to such top-notch retailers as Barnes & Noble, Waldenbooks, Amazon.com – plus countless independent bookstores and book retail websites.

Tate Publishing distributors will also supply this book for Follett, Baker & Taylor, Appalachian, and Christian Book Distributors - making it available to order at more than 25,000 bookstores worldwide! The audio book will be available for download at Audible.com and Apple’s iTunes.

The book’s entitled: 20 Years to Suicide: A Father Looks Back.

Don’t let the title put you off! This is a “wonderfully written”, “insightful” book about two timely subjects! The first is an epidemic the author calls a “failure to parent”. Have you noticed how to many of today’s kids are rude, defiant, disobedient, and seem to have a complete lack of respect for themselves and others? They show contempt for authority, and no real fear of consequences for their actions.

The second aspect of the book deals with the most common reasons for a “mid-life” divorce. Rod does what very few men are willing, or perhaps capable of doing - he exposes the ups, downs, good times and bad times that led to his divorce to his wife of over fifteen years, while believing that his marriage was rock solid.

We guarantee that when you read through the pages of this exceptional story you’ll see passages, situations, even conversations that remind you of a friend’s, family member’s, or even your own situation! “A must read!”
